FLINT STRIKERS' MESSAGE TO GOVERNOR MURPHY

"Governor, we have decided to stay in the plant. We have no illusions about the sacrifices this decision will entail. We fully expect that if a violent effort is made to oust us, many of us will be killed."

"We take this means to make it known to our wives, to our children, to the people of the state and country that if this result follows from attempts to eject us, you are the one who must be held responsible for our deaths."

'SIT-IN' STRIKERS FLEE COURT PREPARE FOR 'DEATH STAND'

Flint, Mich., Feb. 3 (INS).—The grim spectacle of auto workers dramatically transformed into "death stand" city today as they prepared to carry out the court's injunction ordering General Motors plants closed by 3 p. m.

Ready to defy Sheriff Thomas Wolcott and even the "ring of steel" or virtual martial law, the hundreds of auto workers here at Fisher Body No. 1 and 2 were prepared by their own words to die rather than quit the plants they have occupied for more than a month.

Sheriff Wolcott read Judge Paul V. Gaddola's order to them last night and was greeted with hoots in one plant. Under law, the sheriff has the authority to call for the thousands of state troopers here if necessary to clear the plants at 3 p. m., as Judge Gaddola ordered.

"DEATH STAND"
"But while the men in a telegram to Governor Frank Murphy. "We have decided to stay in the plants. We have no illusions about the sacrifices this decision will entail. We fully expect that if a violent effort is made to oust us, many of us will be killed and we take this means to make it known to our wives and children and the people of the state and country that if this result follows from attempts to eject us, you are the one who must be held responsible for our deaths."

4000 MILITIA AT HAND
Standing here was a total of 4,000 National Guard troops, in addition to the police and county posse officers were in the city.

Sheriff Wolcott said after the injunction was read: "I am not going to get into the middle of this. I am not going to get into the middle of this. I am not going to get into the middle of this."

Counting Lewis in command of the strikers, who have formed the ring of steel around the General Motors plants, said he had not yet received any specific orders.

Judge Gaddola declined to comment on the telegram sent Governor Lewis, saying he would not be involved in the case.

"All I can do is enforce the law," he said.

3 P. M. DEADLINE
The strikers refused to leave the plants by 3 p. m. the judge ordered the National Guard to clear the plants by force.

Although a showdown strike is in progress at Chevrolet plant No. 2, that plant was not mentioned in the evaluation order.

However, the order did prevent strikers of GM, of that plant, too, from being able to leave the plant.

NERVES INJUNCTION
Sheriff Wolcott had little trouble serving the injunction order, although his men were demoralized by the strikers' defiance.

He said he was not going to get into the middle of this. He said he was not going to get into the middle of this. He said he was not going to get into the middle of this.

"They've got something I want to read. It's an injunction ordering you to vacate the premises by 3 p. m."

The plant was in total darkness, but a few show-down scene to second story windows. The doors were blocked with huge stacks of metal and heavy barriers. Four strikers finally came to the door, and their spokesman spoke.

"All right, go ahead and read it," he said.

Sheriff Wolcott slowly began to read.

In the name of the people of Michigan, do you hereby order that the General Motors plants be closed by 3 p. m.

Goodyear Closes Plant; Workers Eject Official

Akron, O., Feb. 3 (AP)—The Goodyear Rubber Co. plant here today closed its doors to a strike of 5,000 workers, who were told to leave the plant by 3 p. m.

A Just Decision

The decision of Judge Paul V. Gaddola, ordering immediate evacuation of "sit-down" strikers from Flint automobile plants and cessation of picketing, IS A JUST DECISION.

It is the only possible decision that could be made in conformity with American law.

It upholds the constitutional guaranty of security in the possession of property.

It courageously reaffirms American principles of freedom from unlawful violation of the basic rights of citizens.

It gives the PROTECTION OF LAW to those whose rights have been assailed in conflict with recognized law.

THE perilous situation in Flint calls for all the calm RESTRAINT of which sensible men are capable in an emergency.

Nothing in the situation justifies recourse to violence.

There must not be destruction of property. THERE MUST NOT BE BLOODSHED.

More than ever before, the leaders of the contending factions are obligated TO THE NATION to preserve order.

THE LAW MUST BE RESPECTED.

The authority of the courts must not be challenged.

OUT of this maelstrom of passion and anger, fraught with so much danger at this critical moment, justice and peace must emerge.

Eventually, the clouds of strife and discord will dissolve, workers will return to their jobs, factories will resume production.

Common sense, PREVAILING NOW, will speed that day.

Violent action, unwise and imprudent always, will only delay adjudication of problems which all the disputants should earnestly hope to accomplish peaceably and constructively.

Text of Knudsen Letter

Detroit, Feb. 3 (INS).—Complete text of the letter of W. S. Knudsen to Governor Murphy follows:

"Replying to your communication over the telephone, received at 10 p. m., requesting us to appear before you tomorrow morning (Wednesday) at 9 a. m. for a conference with Mr. John L. Lewis, representing the United Automobile Workers of America, I beg to advise you as follows:

"As you are of course fully aware, a similar request for a conference was made by the secretary of labor at Washington the week before last, and again on Friday, January 29. On both of these occasions we felt compelled to decline the invitation to meet Mr. Lewis, solely on the ground that his union continued in the illegal possession of several of our plants."

"I have no doubt that this is the sound position in upholding law and order in the interest of our employees and the public as well."

evacuation petition set 3 p. m. as the time for the sit-downs to abandon the Fisher Body plants in Flint.

2ND WRIT NEEDED
Today, he announced that further legal process is necessary before the sit-downs can be continued. It is necessary for General Motors to obtain a writ of attachment if it is to be able to shut down the plants.

Sheriff Wolcott, who read the injunction last night to the men, said he was going to visit both plants today to see whether they would be any attempt to avoid the strikers by force, with possibly the help of 4,000 National Guardsmen stationed in the strike-city.

"There'll be no arrests today," he reiterated.

General Motors attorneys were in Flint, but their plans were not immediately revealed.

GOVERNOR MURPHY, acting under instructions from President Hoover, will, he said, send a commission to Flint for a true before the first of the week to investigate the situation of his brother, Judge George Murphy.

After the three men emerged for the record, Governor Murphy made this statement:

"There has been an interesting, friendly and helpful conference here today. I have no further comment."

The conference was William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, and John L. Lewis, chief of the United Automobile Workers, who arrived from Washington.

The most direct presidential intervention in the auto strike thus far came as Knudsen went to the conference, according to Governor Murphy.

Knudsen said he was attending "in accordance with the wish of the President of the United States."

His statement was set out in a letter to Governor Murphy. He said the wish of the President of the United States leaves no alternative.

At 3 p. m. the time Governor Murphy hoped for new free authorities in Flint, according to earlier announcements, the men were to clear General Motors' two plants there of sit-down strikers.

Although the strikers had been determined in an announced "death stand" to stay in the plants, it was not clear whether they would be any attempt to avoid the strikers by force, with possibly the help of 4,000 National Guardsmen stationed in the strike-city.

Rapid fire demonstrations preceded the start of the post conference at 10:40 a. m. in the courtroom of the Federal building.

Murphy's brother of Michigan's governor.

LEWIS WENT TO COURT
Lewis arrived at 8:30 in a "no strike" mood. At 10:40 a. m. Governor Murphy announced Lewis and Knudsen would get together to consider the situation and decide to name the time and place.

After minutes of silence, he announced suddenly the party had started, and then he said he was attending "in accordance with the wish of the President."

Meanwhile, Lewis conferred with union leaders in a downtown hotel room, and also had a telephone conversation with Federal Mediator James F. Dwyer, sent to the strike scene by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

With reporters at his heels, he suddenly left the union conference room, rushed out of the hotel, and was whisked away to the state conference. Police guarded doors of Judge Murphy's office.

The meeting marked the first time Lewis had been seen with any General Motors' officials since the strikes started hitting General Motors' plants last December and ultimately throwing 40,000 auto workers in the nation out of work.

Judge Murphy revealed his brother had asked him at midnight if he could use the chambers as a conference room.

"Frank said he wanted a quiet place to meet and I offered him the chambers," Judge Murphy said.

REHIND LOCKED DOORS
A half-hour after the party started, Governor Murphy, Lewis and Knudsen were still locked in the state conference room. The state must be evacuated before negotiations toward settlement of the strike began.

On his arrival here, Lewis reportedly said he was not in a mood for peaceful evaluation of sit-down strikers in General Motors plants in Flint or allow them to

BROOKLINE MASS MEETING TO RAP 'ICE' 'WHITEWASH'

Led by Joseph A. Howard of Marion street, Brookline, a group of citizens of that town will demand use of the Town Hall for an open mass meeting to discuss what they term the "whitewash" of alleged vice and graft conditions, it was learned today.

Howard has already signed up the majority of names required to petition for a meeting for use of the hall, he said. The petition will be presented to selectmen Friday evening.

At the same time, it was also learned that the selectmen are meeting tonight, as a result of public pressure, to vote on whether or not they will release contents of the two letters sent to them by the Norfolk grand jury, "suggesting" conviction of the alleged vice and graft conditions.

ASKS POINTED QUESTIONS
Howard, as leader of the town movement for the mass meeting, has submitted a letter to The Brookline Citizen, weekly news paper, which will be published Friday and in which he asks a series of pointed questions.

These include demands to know why the probe of Brookline's police department, which was begun a year ago closed so abruptly, why attempts to air such questions have been allegedly "steam-rolled" and why Judge Philip C. Parker acts as prosecutor and judge in Brookline.

Howard stated that all these and other points will be aired at the mass meeting. He stated it is tentatively planned to hold the meeting on Friday evening, February 12.

"Appropriately enough, it is Lincoln's Birthday," he remarked. "The birthday of the great Emancipator is a good day for Brookline to begin her emancipation."

LEGISLATURE DELAYS
While citizens of the town were moving, however, the joint committee on ways and means at the State House, sidetracked the proposed bill for a legislative investigation of Brookline's town government.

Senator Joseph A. Taft, one of the authors of the bill, tried to save it by having committee consideration deferred to a later date, possibly after the trials of the six persons indicted in the "Naford" grand jury in the alleged vice and police graft probe.

He met strong opposition from Representative Albert F. Bigelow, and finally the measure failed. Bigelow is chairman of the committee. It was finally decided to take the matter under advisement.

The letter which Howard has published in the Brookline Citizen was released by courtesy of the author and the paper this afternoon, although not due for publication until Friday. It reads in full:

Editor, The Brookline Citizen.
Dear Sir—The preliminary steps in the so-called "Brookline vice investigation" resulting in the indictment of six persons have seemingly met with the approval of the typical Brookline citizen one encounters, but the feeling which seems to exist here, summed up in one word—White-wash.

ACTION DEMANDED
"And a feeling does exist that something should be done about it. It has been tentatively suggested that the town hall auditorium be secured for a mass meeting of citizens to be held on some evening next week, at which various phases and aspects of the whole affair could be discussed and a line of action be decided upon."

This action could take the form of concrete suggestions to be made to the board of selectmen, backed up by an informed public opinion or, it might find expression in some other, but equally effective method.

In connection with this whole matter, several very pertinent questions were started in the minds of the selectmen.

Why, when an investigation police department about one year ago, were the proceedings brought to an abrupt close?

Why have several attempts, made by various citizens to vent their questions of public interest, been "steam-rolled"?

Why should the presiding justice of the Brookline municipal court, Judge Philip C. Parker, in his capacity as town counsel advise the police department as to their handling of complaints, and when complaints result in warrants being issued at his behest, act in the dual capacity of prosecutor and judge?

CITIZEN'S LEGAL FEES
Why with a yearly salary of $5000 as town counsel, is it necessary for that official to secure outside legal advice and services, or charge extra for work of that nature, which he performs?

"Extra legal expense to the town in $355 amounted to the sum of $14,820.30. Doesn't this amount seem excessive?"

Lack of space prevents the propounding of any more questions of the same tenor, but they can be asked and inquired into at a mass meeting. It is apparent to be the logical and reasonable course of action open to interested Brookline citizens.

5 BAYERS FOR N. E. NEW WORKS PLAN

"which can be utilized in periods of economic depression" for public spending to increase employment. The sewerage program would be the first of a series of public works projects to be initiated annually as studies warranted.

N. E. FLOOD CONTROL.

The report said coordination and co-operation of federal, state and local agencies was necessary to solve problems, principally flood control and pollution abatement, involving New England's water resources.

The committee reported that "reasonable" flood protection could be afforded the Connecticut river basin by construction of a reservoir system costing approximately $40,000,000, and that adequate control and regulation of the Merrimack river could be obtained by spending from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 on reservoirs.

The committee added, however, that only part of the cost could justifiably be charged against flood control, the remainder being allocated to power, recreation and other benefits.

Flood control in New England, the report said, "must be approached not as an isolated project, but as one of several benefits, including power development, improved navigation, and recreation, that may result in combination from the construction of storage reservoirs to collect flood waters and release them later in relatively dry periods."

MERRIMACK BASIN PLAN.

Immediate construction of a Merrimack basin reservoir system at an estimated cost of $12,500,000 was recommended, as was immediate construction of two dams in the Connecticut-Housatonic basin at Pittsford, N. H., to cost $12,500,000, and at Victory, Vt., to cost $750,000.

The committee recommended also expenditure of $10,000,000 for a complete study of flood control and stream regulation in the Connecticut-Housatonic basin.

"Pollution abatement... is also a problem of major importance," the report said. "Many rivers in this district are used as conduits for the disposal of sewage and industrial wastes by the communities along their banks. The resultant pollution has impaired the usefulness of the rivers for recreational purposes, and also has virtually destroyed fish life."

"In the river valleys now developed chiefly for industry, restoration of the surface waters to a state of natural purity would increase expenditures in excess of the benefits which could be realized."

PROTECTION OF FISH.

"For the immediate future at least, the program of restoration should be limited to the elimination of nuisances, in the form of sewage and industrial wastes, and to the more objectionable deposits and silt and sediment, and to the removal of obstructions to the free flow of water."

"Along the coastal waters, fisheries should be taken to protect the shellfish and recreational areas from the damage and contamination of certain ship channels and anchorages and construction of breakwaters, jetties and seawalls to protect sandy beaches from erosion constitute additional problems. The recreational facilities afforded by the water areas, though already great, doubtless will merit further improvement as the vast recreational industry of New England continues to grow."

Annual projects recommended for immediate construction were: Sewer treatment plant, North Abington, Mass., $100,000; North Abington, Mass., $100,000; North Abington, Mass., $100,000; North Abington, Mass., $100,000.

SAILOR Bill Turns DOCTOR

DOCTOR WINS "WHOPPER"

If you've ever wondered about the "origin of the Cape Cod Canal," then listen to this story. It won the first prize of $2 as today's best "whopper."

What's it all about? Very simple.

Every day the Whopper Editor of the Boston Evening American will give two dollars for the best "tall story" or "whopper." They're not hard to write, but somehow they just give bigger and bigger as you go along.

Now for today's winner on the "origin of the Cape Cod Canal" by Mr. R. R. McCormick of the Hotel Lenox, Back Bay.

"Sailor Bill"

"Sailor Bill of Boston was a man of the sea, of tremendous strength and size. Many tales of his prowess are recounted by the old sailors who remember him—how he climbed the mainmast during a hurricane and split 250 yards against the wind to show his contempt for the storm. And of how he swam half a mile under water in a pirate ship about to attack and upon coming to the surface, he saw a mighty island of air, filling the ship's wake, that in a flash came to a stop until half way to Cape Hatteras.

But the thing Sailor Bill is remembered most for is the time his ship sailed out of Boston for New York without him. Upon going to the wharf next morning, Bill discovered his error in sailing the time and immediately dove into the water and set out on his fatal voyage.

Forgot Cape Cod

"He was a very strong, swift swimmer, but he neglected to remember Cape Cod in his hurry. He swam so fast and so hard that he went right through Cape Cod without knowing he was out of the water—and so he left the Cape Cod Canal."

Well, if you know a better one than that, write right away. There are two dollars waiting for you.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—It wasn't necessary for Hugh Hanks, Jr., to bring his mind-boggling tale to play today. It was spread on the records. The cause is Hugh's mind-boggling tale, according to the bill for divorce filed by his wife, Mrs. William Hanks, Jr., in the Superior Court of Cook County, Ill., last night.

There was a Valentine Day marriage in Chicago, 1924, but not afterward Hugh wanted to know his young bride to know thoughts of his wife. He wanted to know his wife was a clever, mischievous, and he would know about it instantly.

But he came home one day the divorce, legal charges, and started his face against it.

That was for thinking of another man.

His wife heartily denied it, he claimed her own.

That's for not admitting the truth," he said, according to the bill.

But Mrs. Hanks was reading her own mind, and finally decided on the spot.

Robert Taylor, as you all know, was a college student when he was given his first opportunity in motion pictures and Bob has always had a soft spot in his heart for those youngsters with green and stage ambitions. Now comes a letter from Stanford University saying that Bob has given the psychology department a grant-in-aid scholarship to assist students in studying the psychology of the theater. President Wilson is announcing that.

Will Wed
Youth She Jilted

Worcester, Feb. 3.—Story comes of someone here who was in a lousy climax for Helen J. Oliver, 18, former beauty parlor employee. The mother, who accompanied Helen's marriage to the youth she jilted in Worcester.

Helen returned the ring of Raymond Oliver, 21, of South Quabbin, around seven, Shrewsbury, after she had filed marriage intentions in Boston to wed Henry B. Purcell, 29, former Bostonian and announced in her home point.

It was somewhat disconcerting to the marriage plans, however, when Helen stepped in, arrested Purcell on a charge of abducting Helen and then announced that he had married three women in eight years, without divorcing any of them.

Purcell went to jail for 18 months on a lumpy charge, but last Friday, according to announcement of her mother, Mrs. W. Edgar Oliver of Kalamazoo, Mich., Helen Oliver was married in Worcester, N. Y.

Universal Seeks Spencer Tracy For Pony Express Film Lead

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—Specialists in almost every branch of the movie these days. Universal is about to make a saga of 77 years ago, when gold was transported via pony express, and Percy Brinks, great-grandson of the owner of Brinks' Pony Express, will supply the historical data.

The original idea of "Armored Car" belongs to William Butler, who is Charlie Rogers' assistant and a very capable young man.

Universal plans to produce "Armored Car," originally called "The Romance of the Pony Express," as an epic with the scope of the "Covered Wagon" and "The Covered Wagon."

Tracy is Rogers' idea of what the hero should be, but Louella O. Parsons will cast him to borrow space he will cast his eye for another actor of Tracy's ability and popularity.

The quadruple in Pannie Hanks' new novel, "After Act," became just another and you understand why since it is almost impossible to find four actresses who look exactly alike.

But Louella has compromised by making the quadruple, who fall in love with a solitary man, just four girls in a family. So far two of the sisters have been chosen—Olivia DeLand and Anita Louise—with the others to be discovered in a later date.

Exactly the most interesting book in motion is "Of Love, Geyer." After reading through one of these while down with the flu I found this novel, by Maria Davenport, one of the worth reading from cover to cover.

Harry Cook is very likely to have bought the screen rights for it will be an excellent vehicle for Grace Moore. Monsieur Chou, however, plans to make another story, first, heading "The Lover," until later in the year.

Mr. Moore is in a fair way for her current tour, returning in April for her Columbia contract.

Charlie Brown, with "Piggy" tell your readers we have found Garba's brother. After an actor has been signed, it can't be a bad thing to have a brother in "Countess Maritana," now in production.

Shirley Temple, young Theater Guild actor, has been signed and it is Charlie's opinion that the young man has screen possibilities. He has the same spiritual quality as the screen possibilities. He has the same spiritual quality as the screen possibilities.

Chatter to Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. Temple should think twice before they make up the mind of their million dollar child. She is in, in such an embarrassing position.

After a hurried consultation between Mrs. Temple and her husband, she decided to go to the Temple house to see the picture with Shirley Temple in the picture.

BOSTON

after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

EXCLUSIVE: When his day in court arrives, Sergeant Harry H. McNeill of Brookline will answer his indictment by matching his 17 years of service on the Brookline force against the word of a convicted white-slaver. . . Brookline's suspended vice squad leader told this column last night that the only testimony supplied the grand jury which indicted him was a deposition made by Al Scheinfeld, or Shepard. . . State police have been given information that one of the missing gems stolen from Mrs. William J. Kennedy adorns the finger of a prominent Boston matron. . . George White and Russell Patterson, the artist, have joined forces. . . In a few weeks, George will place a musical in rehearsal. . . It will be called "Models Preferred," in lieu of the customary "Scandal" tag, and present plans call for a Boston opening in the spring. . . Patterson will design the scenery, costumes and assist in the selection of beauties. . . Louis Armstrong, the great colored trumpeter, has undergone a successful tonsillectomy, and his first appearance minus tonsils will occur at the Metropolitan Theater, starting Feb. 26. . . A mysterious gal who has maintained a Garbo aloofness while permitting the word to get around that she was Jean Harlow "incognito" has had Miami Beach by the ears. . . Although it is difficult to picture La Harlow disguising her identity, particularly at a beach resort, many of the vacationing Bostonians have been writing home about the film star. . . News dispatches last night carried word that Jean was ailing with influenza aboard a train in the Southwest.

GEORGE HOLLAND

CHECK-UP: Walter Wanger, graduate of Dartmouth and Oxford and one of the most literate of the film producers, is producer of the new picture, "You Only Live Once." The title is ungrammatical, but Wanger knows it. And to forefend hecklers he's going to send a bulletin about it.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Governor Charles F. Hurley, a Boston College man, was chief speaker last night at the Holy Cross Alumni dinner at the Hotel Conroy Square. . . Holy Cross beat Boston College both years that the Governor played in the Boston College line. . . Olie Olsen and Chick Johnson, who keep newspapermen out all night, are coming with their new revue to the RKO Boston a week from tomorrow. . . Leon Errol and Sunny O'Day were at the Bruins Canadiens game at the Garden last night. . . Errol is wearing dark glasses, but the former Ziegfeld star resembles a juvenile. . . Len Kalamitnik will leave Sunday, with his family, for the coast. . . John Casey, the former Lynn newspaperman, has one of the most successful advertising agencies in New York. . . The oversized, fat man with many another newspaperman has switched brands of cigarettes. . . To the product of a first-line company which is pouring money into the counting rooms of the country's magazines.

Among the visiting press agents are Tom Kearns, who hails from Lynn, and Steve Edwards, a West Roxbury native. . . Jane Thurston, daughter of the late Thurston, the Magician, has mastered most of the tricks of her father and is touring (Boston soon), with all her late father's equipment and apparatus. . . New York is absorbed already in preparations for the World's Fair of '39. . . The name of the man in charge of all concessions is Mike Murnie. . . A Chicago firm has gone on record as offering $100,000 for a ten cent concession. . . Lou Ashe, the singing master of ceremonies, is in Boston for his first visit in three years. . . He has been writing songs in Hollywood. . . Jane Whitney, the singer who scored a hit at the Ritz Carlton last summer, will come to Boston two weeks hence when Johnny Hamp's band plays a college date. . . When the date is announced, it will probably turn out to be an intercollegiate prom, as Miss Whitney "wowed" the college lads. . . Johnny Hancock, the former golf pro who is currently an aide de camp to Johnny Hawes, the Republican lieutenant among the tavern-keepers, is an unassuming follower, business regardless, of Senator Edward G. Carroll. . . Among those present, at Miami Beach, are Garrett Byrne, the prosecuting attorney, and Ray O'Connell, the lobbyist lobbyist. . . Three big shots from the United Hotel chain are camping around the cabanas of Desnouville, too. . . They are Charles Wickes, Charles Doherty and B. G. Hines. . .

As reported here previously, the Florida hotels are popular very thinly. . . The season is a failure generally, and the natives next winter are expected to petition the authorities to "open up" the resorts. . . Ban on general gambling, with the exception of slot-machines, is supposed to have discouraged tourists. . . New Orleans, on the other hand, where almost anything goes this current Mardi Gras season, is doing very well. . . The most "swanky" social club in the Mardi Gras City is the Boston Club. . . It was organized before the Civil War. . . But it was not named after the city of Boston. . . It was named after a game, which no one seems to know much about. . .

Swing Stuff: Exclusive: Glen Gray, the Casa Loma leader, will discount playing first saxophone but appear in front of the band with a baton. . . The change is made because Gray's publicity has caused thousands of requests that he identify himself as leader. . . Shari Kaye, the popular girl singer with Al Dunahoe's orchestra, was absent when it played at the Normandie. . . She contracted the flu in Cincinnati when the band raged. . . Miss Kaye has recovered and has rejoined the band. . . Bob Crosby, Billy's brother, is breaking records with his own orchestra, en route to New York, then Boston. . . Della Carroll, the stripy dancer who linked her name with Clark Gable's, has formed her own orchestra and will appear at the State Ballroom here Friday night. . . Miss Carroll played here recently with N. T. G.'s revue.

Bowdoin Bill

"Rembrandt" dramatic story of the world's famous voyager of beauty, with Charles Laughlin and Gertrude Lawrence, leads the bill at the Bowdoin Square Theater, starting today and running through Friday.

'Lloyds' Due at Met; Errol on RKO Stage

The Met's new bill, starting tomorrow, will have a decidedly English accent what with the notable Twentieth Century-Fox production, "Lloyds of London," filmization of one of the most dramatic eras in English history, the screen attraction and little fader, popular American singing star who scored her first great success as a motion picture star in London recently, heading the stage show.

Another stage favorite, Leon Errol, Ziegfeld's greatest comedy star, and Louise Dresser, only star of "Initiation of Life," and "Rainbow on the River," top the "Hollywood Models of 1937" stage revue, which comes to the RKO Boston stage tomorrow.

"Join the Marines," farce-musical with Paul Kelly, Reginald Denney and June Travis, is the seven feature.

"Lloyds of London," which has been produced on a gigantic scale under the direction of Darryl Zanuck, features an impressive cast of thousands headed by Freddie Bartholomew, Madeleine Carroll, Tyrone Power and Sir Guy Standing.

It is the story of a great love that changed the destiny of an empire as well as the stirring history of the world's greatest business organization, the famous Lloyds of London.

The huge supporting cast features C. Aubrey Smith, Virginia Field, Douglas Scott, Montagu Love, E. E. Cline, Ivan Simpson, Vernon Steele, Hugh Handley, Holmes Herbert, George Sanders, J. M. Kerrigan, Robert Gray and London Lane.

Errol, Ziegfeld's celebrated comedy star, and Louise Dresser, the stage show, others in the line stage show. Others in the footlights cast are Dick and Edith Barrow, Ward

Sonja Film At Scollay, Modern

That sensational little Swedish import, Sonja Herie, in "One in a Million," which broke all box office records at the Metropolitan and Paramount and Fenway Theaters, comes to the Scollay and Modern screens for a week, starting Friday.
